AIGF Investment – B H S Kinetic (Press Release)

AIGF Advisors Pte. Ltd. (“AIGF”), has completed a significant investment in B H S Kinetic Pte. Ltd. (“BHS”), an integrated specialised logistics and installation services provider, offering customised end-to-end solutions across a variety of industries over the years including, among others, semiconductor and electronic manufacturing, aviation and pharmaceuticals.

Since it was established over 40 years ago, BHS has grown into a leading player in Singapore in this sector. The company has developed a reputation for having strong in-house engineering capabilities to customise and provide innovative solutions for its clients.

“Partnering with AIGF will allow us to strengthen our business processes, enhance our value proposition to clients, and enable us to innovate on our logistics and engineering capabilities. This will help maximize our potential in the world of specialised logistics,” said Bryan Lim, CEO of BHS. “The team at AIGF is not only fully aligned with our mission, but also has a proven track record of working very effectively alongside companies to accelerate their growth. They have a strong network across sectors and we look forward to leveraging their network and expertise to expand our service offering, better-serve our existing clients, and expand to onboard new clients into the BHS network.”

“Given its deep experience and extensive infrastructure, BHS is able to provide an integrated suite of services in a consistent and, more importantly, reliable manner to its clients,” said Daniel Yong, Partner at AIGF. “At a time when products derived from advanced manufacturing industries are becoming increasingly more entrenched in our daily lives, driven by constant technological advancements, BHS continues to innovate and maintain its position as the leading provider of specialised and customised logistics and installation services to such industries in its markets and as the partner of choice for its clients. We are very excited to invest behind the BHS brand and are deeply honoured to be partnering with Bryan and the team to build on the foundations that the company has established over the years, and to bring it to greater heights.”

Commenting on the transaction, AIGF’s CEO, Yasutaka Ichihara said: “We are very happy to welcome BHS and its team to the AIGF family. Having built a business with an impressive track-record over the past four decades, we are privileged to commence our first investment from AIGF’s second fund with this partnership with BHS.”

AIGF has an established strategy of identifying and working with companies with strong potential to unlock the value of these businesses, and help them achieve market leading positions as they grow.
